MA Program
The MA program revolves around the field of Rights, Justice, Citizenship, and Identity while allowing flexibility for students to pursue their various interests. Within the broader framework of Rights, Justice, Citizenship and Identity, the Department has particular strengths in Public Policy and Administration and Global Justice and Politics and offers a number of courses related to those topics.

Our broad range of course offerings and routes to complete the degree allow students to tailor their experience towards their future employment or academic goals. Graduates of the program are engaged in a wide range of careers with academic institutions, government and public sector agencies, non-governmental organizations, and industry.

Application Procedure
Program offices should be consulted for admission deadlines and required documents (https://www.uoguelph.ca/polisci/masters/how-apply/). Complete application submission instructions can be found at http://www.uoguelph.ca/graduatemasters/apply/.

Graduate students are admitted each Fall semester.

Admission Requirements
The department requires an Honours BA degree (4 years) in political science (or its equivalent) with at least a 'B+' average for consideration for admission to the program. A methodology course equivalent to The Systematic Study of Politics, POLS*3650 Quantitative Methods of Data Analysis, in the Department of Political Science undergraduate program, is necessary for admission to the graduate program. Students not satisfying this requirement may be admitted with the provision that it be satisfied by completing the requisite extra course.

Program Requirements
Students enroll in one of three study options:

1. course work only,
2. course work and major research paper or
3. course work and thesis.

Thesis
In order to satisfy the degree requirements, the student will complete three courses plus POLS*6900 Communications, POLS*6940 Research Design and Methods and complete a Thesis.

Five courses with at least three of them from the following core courses:

Thesis
A thesis of approximately 10,000 to 15,000 words (approximately 80 to 100 double-spaced pages). The written thesis is defended in an oral examination.

Course Work and Major Research Paper
In order to satisfy the degree requirements, the student will complete four courses plus POLS*6940 Research Design and Methods, POLS*6900 Communications, for a total of six courses and complete POLS*6970 Major Paper.

Four courses with at least two of them from the following core courses:

The research paper is approximately 10,000 to 12,500 words (approximately 40 to 50 double-spaced pages).
PhD Program
The PhD program offers students the opportunity to pursue studies in six fields:

1. Canadian Politics;
2. Comparative politics;
3. Gender, Race, Indigeneity, and Sexuality;
4. International Relations;
5. Law and Politics; and
6. Public Policy and Governance.

Students are required to major in one field and minor in the other. The Department has wide-ranging and various expertise in each of the fields—please consult the Department’s website for more information.

The PhD program is designed both for students interested in pursuing academic positions and also for students interested in working in research capacities in the public, non-profit or private sectors.

Application Procedure
Graduate students are admitted each Fall semester. Program offices should be consulted for admission deadlines and required documents https://www.uoguelph.ca/polisci/masters/how-apply (https://www.uoguelph.ca/polisci/masters/how-apply/). All applications must be submitted on-line. Complete application submission instructions can be found at https://www.uoguelph.ca/graduatestudies/apply (http://www.uoguelph.ca/graduatestudies/apply/)

Admission Requirements
Students are expected to have a completed an MA in Political Science with at least an A- average for consideration for admission to the program. Students with a MA in a Social Science other than Political Science, are encouraged to apply on the condition that they take additional courses upon their entry into the program.

Program Requirements
Students will be required to successfully complete a minimum of six graduate courses:

• Two PhD field courses, one course in the student’s major field and one course in the minor field (selected in consultation with the student’s Advisor)
• Two research methods courses:
  • POLS*6940 Research Design and Methods
  • POLS*6500 Qualitative and Quantitative Data Analysis
• Two elective courses
• A written qualifying exam and an oral qualifying exam.

The qualifying examination will take the form of a written take-home examination followed by an oral examination and will be based on the reading lists for the core courses in the major and minor field. Normally the examination will involve three questions based on the major field of study and two questions from the minor field.
• A thesis

Each candidate will be required to write and submit a thesis on the research carried out by the candidate on a topic approved by the Advisory Committee. The thesis is expected to be a significant contribution to knowledge in its field and the candidate must indicate in what ways it is a contribution. A thesis is expected to be no less than 200 double-spaced pages in length. The thesis must demonstrate mature scholarship and critical judgement on the part of the candidate, and it must indicate an ability to express oneself in a satisfactory literary style. Approval of the thesis is taken to imply that it is judged to be sufficiently meritorious to warrant publication in reputable scholarly media in the field.

Collaborative Specializations
International Development Studies
The Department of Political Science participates in the MA in International Development Studies (IDS) collaborative specialization. Please consult the International Development Studies (calendar.uoguelph.ca/graduate-calendar/collaborative-specializations/international-development-studies/) listing for a detailed description of the MA collaborative specialization including the special additional requirements for each of the participating departments.

IDS graduates hold positions in government in Canada and abroad with NGOs, international organizations and private consultancies. Many also enter PhD programs.

The Department of Political Science also participates in the PhD collaborative specialization in International Development Studies (IDS), which provides an opportunity to engage in interdisciplinary study of international development issues. Applications are part of the general PhD application, and go directly to the Political Science Department. In addition to the Political Science PhD requirements, IDS applicants are expected to have a strong background in the social sciences, a demonstrable track record of experience in the course-based study of development issues, development research and/or development practice and a stated research interest relating to international development. The IDS designation also requires two core courses in international development theory and research methods. Please consult the International Development Studies listing for more information about the requirements and expectations of the PhD collaborative specialization in IDS.

One Health
The Department of Political Science participates in the collaborative specialization in One Health. Master’s and Doctoral students wishing to undertake thesis research or their major research paper/project with an emphasis on one health are eligible to apply to register concurrently in Political Science and the collaborative specialization. Students should consult the One Health (calendar.uoguelph.ca/graduate-calendar/collaborative-specializations/one-health/) listing for more information.

Courses
A number of graduate courses are cross-listed with intensive, senior undergraduate seminars. In these cross-listed offerings, which are identified as such in the course descriptions, course and grading expectations will be tailored to graduate students.

Students should also consult the fourth year undergraduate course selection. Graduate students, with the approval of the instructor and the Graduate Program Coordinator, may take a fourth year undergraduate course in the Political Science Department. This course is taken as POLS*6950 Specialized Topics in Political Studies. Course requirements are modified so that they are comparable to other courses offered at the graduate level.
POLS*6050 The Politics of Identity Unspecified [0.50]
This course engages theoretical approaches of identity and identity politics in the global north and/or south. Topics may include contestation over indigenous, racial, ethnic, cultural, sexual, gender, and women’s rights.
Department(s): Department of Political Science
Location(s): Guelph

POLS*6120 Theories of International Relations Unspecified [0.50]
This course examines Western and non-Western theories of international relations, such as realism, liberalism, and constructivism, as well as Marxist, critical, indigenous and gender approaches. It will engage with established and emerging theories, exploring contestation and debates within the discipline.
Department(s): Department of Political Science
Location(s): Guelph

POLS*6130 Rights and Public Policy Unspecified [0.50]
Students will study how individual rights can be restricted, protected or expanded through public policy, and how rights considerations and discourse may shape policy and the policy process.
Department(s): Department of Political Science
Location(s): Guelph

POLS*6150 Constitutionalism and Judicial Politics Unspecified [0.50]
This course investigates how the constitution and the judiciary affect political processes and decision-making, and how politics shape constitutions and judicial process. Canadian or comparative examples will be examined.
Department(s): Department of Political Science
Location(s): Guelph

POLS*6160 Multi-Level Governance in Canada Unspecified [0.50]
This course considers the evolving relationship among levels of government in Canada. The growth of cities, the growth of policy responsibilities of provinces, the influence of international organizations, and the development of Indigenous governments in Canada all challenge the conventional study of federal-provincial relations in Canada. From year to year, this course examines one or several of these contemporary dynamics. Offered in conjunction with POLS*4160. Extra work is required for graduate students.
Restriction(s): Credit may be obtained for only one of POLS*4160 or POLS*6160
Department(s): Department of Political Science
Location(s): Guelph

POLS*6170 Courts and Parliament Unspecified [0.50]
The course critically examines the complex relationship between the judiciary and representative institutions. By comparing the treatment of current political controversies (assisted suicide, prostitution, drug treatment), students will better appreciate the often-subtle exchanges between the two institutions and further enhance their research abilities in regards to both legal and legislative processes. Offered in conjunction with POLS*4070. Extra work is required for graduate students.
Restriction(s): Credit may be obtained for only one of POLS*4070 or POLS*6170
Department(s): Department of Political Science
Location(s): Guelph

POLS*6180 Women, Justice and Public Policy Unspecified [0.50]
This course will use gender-based analysis in examining a series of justice and public policy issues affecting the lives of women, including equality rights, pay and employment equity, domestic violence, sexual assault, family policy, health care policy, and pornography. Offered in conjunction with POLS*4100. Extra work is required for graduate students.
Restriction(s): Credit may be obtained for only one of POLS*4100 or POLS*6180
Department(s): Department of Political Science
Location(s): Guelph

POLS*6200 Law and Politics Unspecified [0.50]
This course explores advanced topics in law and politics depending on the interests of the instructor. Potential topics include investigating the law and politics of social change or analyzing debates about the political power of courts in Canada or in comparative perspectives. Offered in conjunction with POLS*4050. Extra work is required for graduate students.
Restriction(s): Credit may be obtained for only one of POLS*4050 or POLS*6200
Department(s): Department of Political Science
Location(s): Guelph

POLS*6210 Conceptions of Canada Unspecified [0.50]
This course will explore evolving conceptions of Canadian identity and nationalism through consideration of political culture, institutions and constitutional arrangements. Possible topics include: multiculturalism, aboriginal identity and community, Quebec nationalism, social citizenship, rights and representation, as well as Canada’s global role and significance.
Department(s): Department of Political Science
Location(s): Guelph

POLS*6380 State-Building and Regime Change Unspecified [0.50]
Students will explore theories of states, regimes, state-building, regime change, and democratization. The course critically engages dominant debates and reviews empirical examples.
Department(s): Department of Political Science
Location(s): Guelph

POLS*6390 Resource Scarcity and Conflict Unspecified [0.50]
This course examines domestic, international and global dimensions of environmental governance and resource conflict, as well as stakeholder perspectives on resource politics. Topics may include climate change; the resource curse; commodity production, trade and consumption; food and human security; political ecology and extractive industries.
Department(s): Department of Political Science
Location(s): Guelph

POLS*6400 Citizenship and Social Policy Unspecified [0.50]
Students will study citizenship and the allocation of social goods through social policies. Normative debates, theoretical frameworks, and empirical perspectives in a range of social policy fields - such as health care, pensions, childcare, education, and housing - may be examined.
Department(s): Department of Political Science
Location(s): Guelph

POLS*6500 Qualitative and Quantitative Data Analysis Unspecified [0.50]
This course introduces both qualitative and quantitative methods of data analysis. Students will engage theoretical material on the subject and develop data analysis skills through practice.
Department(s): Department of Political Science
Location(s): Guelph
POLS*6510 Political Participation and Engagement Unspecified [0.50]
Students will study how individual citizens engage in the political process. Informal channels such as social movements or more formal organizations such as interest groups and political parties may be examined.

Department(s): Department of Political Science
Location(s): Guelph

POLS*6520 International Political Economy Unspecified [0.50]
The course relies on theoretical approaches in IPE to examine relationships between politics and economics across national and regional levels. The evolution of the global political economy and its governance structures is explored, as well as contemporary debates about globalization and state and non-state actors' responses. Issue-areas may include: money and power, technology, trade, development and the environment. Offered in conjunction with POLS*4200. Extra work is required for graduate students.
