MA Program

The MA program revolves around the field of Rights, Justice, Citizenship, and Identity while allowing flexibility for students to pursue their various interests. Within the broader framework of Rights, Justice, Citizenship and Identity, the Department has particular strengths in Public Policy and Administration and Global Justice and Politics and offers a number of courses related to those topics.

Our broad range of course offerings and routes to complete the degree allow students to tailor their experience towards their future employment or academic goals. Graduates of the program are engaged in a wide range of careers with academic institutions, government and public sector agencies, non-governmental organizations, and industry.

Admission Requirements

The department requires an Honours BA degree (4 years) in political science (or its equivalent) with at least a 'B+' average for consideration for admission to the program. Completion of methodology courses equivalent to POLS*2650 Political Inquiry and Research Methods and POLS*3650 Quantitative Methods of Data Analysis, in the Department of Political Science undergraduate program, is necessary for admission to the graduate program. Students not satisfying this requirement may be admitted with the provision that it be satisfied by completing the requisite extra course(s).

Application Procedure

Program offices should be consulted for admission deadlines and required documents <https://polisci.uoguelph.ca/future-students/graduate-programs/how-apply> (<https://polisci.uoguelph.ca/future-students/graduate-programs/how-apply/>). Complete application submission instructions can be found at <http://www.uoguelph.ca/graduatestudies/apply/> (<http://graduatestudies.uoguelph.ca/future-applying-guelph/>).

Graduate students are admitted each Fall semester.

Program Requirements

Students enroll in one of three study options:

1. course work only,
2. course work and major research paper or
3. course work and thesis.

Thesis

In order to satisfy the degree requirements, the student will complete three courses plus POLS*6900 Communications, POLS*6940 Research Design and Methods and complete a Thesis.

Three courses with at least two of them from the following core courses:

Code	Title	Credits
POLS*6050	The Politics of Identity	0.50
POLS*6130	Rights and Public Policy	0.50
POLS*6150	Constitutionalism and Judicial Politics	0.50
POLS*6400	Citizenship and Social Policy	0.50
POLS*6510	Political Participation and Engagement	0.50
POLS*6730	Development and Global Justice	0.50

Plus:

Code	Title	Credits
POLS*6900	Communications	0.25
POLS*6940	Research Design and Methods	0.75
Or an approved equivalent from another department
Thesis ¹

¹ A thesis of approximately 10,000 to 15,000 words (approximately 80 to 100 double-spaced pages). The written thesis is defended in an oral examination.

Course Work and Major Research Paper

In order to satisfy the degree requirements, the student will complete four courses plus POLS*6940 Research Design and Methods, POLS*6900 Communications, for a total of six courses and complete POLS*6970 Major Paper.

Four courses with at least two of them from the following core courses:

Code	Title	Credits
POLS*6050	The Politics of Identity	0.50
POLS*6130	Rights and Public Policy	0.50
POLS*6150	Constitutionalism and Judicial Politics	0.50
POLS*6400	Citizenship and Social Policy	0.50
POLS*6510	Political Participation and Engagement	0.50
POLS*6730	Development and Global Justice	0.50

Plus:

Code	Title	Credits
POLS*6900	Communications	0.25
POLS*6940	Research Design and Methods	0.75
Or an approved equivalent from another department
POLS*6970	Major Paper ²	1.00

² The research paper is approximately 10,000 to 12,500 words (approximately 40 to 50 double-spaced pages).

Course Work

In order to satisfy the degree requirements, the student will complete POLS*6940 Research Design and Methods and POLS*6900 Communications, plus five additional courses.

Five courses with at least three of them from the following core courses:

Code	Title	Credits
POLS*6050	The Politics of Identity	0.50
POLS*6130	Rights and Public Policy	0.50
POLS*6150	Constitutionalism and Judicial Politics	0.50
POLS*6400	Citizenship and Social Policy	0.50
POLS*6510	Political Participation and Engagement	0.50
POLS*6730	Development and Global Justice	0.50

Plus:

Code	Title	Credits
POLS*6940	Research Design and Methods	0.75
Or an approved equivalent from another department
POLS*6900	Communications	0.25

PhD Program

Admission Requirements

Students are expected to have completed an MA in Political Science with at least an A- average for consideration for admission to the program. Students with a MA in a social science other than Political Science are encouraged to apply on the condition that they take additional courses upon their entry into the program.

Application Procedure

Graduate students are admitted each Fall semester. Program offices should be consulted for admission deadlines and required documents: <https://polisci.uoguelph.ca/future-students/graduate-programs/how-apply> (<https://polisci.uoguelph.ca/future-students/graduate-programs/how-apply/>). All applications must be submitted online. Complete application submission instructions can be found at <http://graduatestudies.uoguelph.ca/future/applying-guelph>. (<http://graduatestudies.uoguelph.ca/future/applying-guelph/>)

Program Requirements

Students are required to major in one field of specialization. The Department has wide-ranging and various expertise in each of the fields—please consult the Department’s website for more information.

The PhD program is designed both for students interested in pursuing academic positions and also for students interested in working in research capacities in the public, non-profit or private sectors.

Students are required to successfully complete a minimum of five graduate courses, as follows:

Code	Title	Credits
POLS*6500	Qualitative and Quantitative Data Analysis	0.50
POLS*6900	Communications	0.25
POLS*6940	Research Design and Methods	0.75
One of the following field courses, based on field of specialization:
POLS*6050	The Politics of Identity	0.50
POLS*6120	Theories of International Relations	0.50
POLS*6150	Constitutionalism and Judicial Politics	0.50
POLS*6380	Political Contention in a Comparative Perspective	0.50
POLS*6630	Approaches to Public Policy Analysis	0.50
One elective		0.50

Qualifying Examination

The qualifying examination will take the form of a written take-home examination followed by an oral examination and will be based on the material of the designated course in the student’s field of specialization as well as a supplementary reading list. Normally the examination will involve four questions about the student’s field of specialization.

Thesis

Each candidate will be required to write and submit a thesis on the research carried out by the candidate on a topic approved by the Advisory Committee. The thesis is expected to be a significant contribution to knowledge in its field and the candidate must indicate in what ways it is a contribution. A thesis is expected to be no less than 200 double-spaced pages in length. The thesis must demonstrate mature scholarship and critical judgement on the part of the candidate, and it must indicate an ability to express oneself in a satisfactory literary style. Approval of the thesis is taken to imply that it is judged to be sufficiently meritorious to warrant publication in reputable scholarly media in the field.

Collaborative Specializations

International Development Studies

The Department of Political Science participates in the MA in International Development Studies (IDS) collaborative specialization. Please consult the International Development Studies (<https://calendar.uoguelph.ca/graduate-calendar/collaborative-specializations/international-development-studies/>) listing for a detailed description of the MA collaborative specialization including the special additional requirements for each of the participating departments.

IDS graduates hold positions in government in Canada and abroad with NGOs, international organizations and private consultancies. Many also enter PhD programs.

The Department of Political Science also participates in the PhD collaborative specialization in International Development Studies (IDS), which provides an opportunity to engage in interdisciplinary study of international development issues. Applications are part of the general PhD application, and go directly to the Political Science Department. In addition to the Political Science PhD requirements, IDS applicants are expected to have a strong background in the social sciences, a demonstrable track record of experience in the course-based study of development issues, development research and/or development practice and a stated research interest relating to international development. The IDS designation also requires two core courses in international development theory and research methods. Please consult the International Development Studies listing for more information about the requirements and expectations of the PhD collaborative specialization in IDS.

Latin American and Caribbean Studies

The MA and PhD programs in Political Science participate in the collaborative specialization in Latin American and Caribbean Studies (LACS). Consult the Latin American and Caribbean Studies (<https://calendar.uoguelph.ca/graduate-calendar/collaborative-specializations/latin-american-and-caribbean-studies/>) listing for a detailed description of the requirements of the collaborative specialization.

One Health

The Department of Political Science participates in the collaborative specialization in One Health. Master’s and Doctoral students wishing to undertake thesis research or their major research paper/project with an emphasis on one health are eligible to apply to register concurrently in Political Science and the collaborative specialization. Students should consult the One Health (<https://calendar.uoguelph.ca/graduate-calendar/collaborative-specializations/one-health/>) listing for more information.

Sexualities, Genders and Bodies

The Political Science program participates in the collaborative specialization in Sexualities, Genders and Bodies. MA and PhD students wishing to undertake thesis research or write their major research paper in the area of sexualities, genders and bodies are eligible to apply to register concurrently in Political Science and the collaborative specialization. Students should consult the Sexualities, Genders and Bodies (<https://calendar.uoguelph.ca/graduate-calendar/collaborative-specializations/sexualities-genders-and-bodies/>) listing for more information.

Courses

A number of graduate courses are cross-listed with intensive, senior undergraduate seminars. In these cross-listed offerings, which are identified as such in the course descriptions, course and grading expectations will be tailored to graduate students.

Students should also consult the fourth year undergraduate course selection. Graduate students, with the approval of the instructor and the Graduate Program Coordinator, may take a fourth year undergraduate course in the Political Science Department. This course is taken as POLS*6950 Specialized Topics in Political Studies. Course requirements are modified so that they are comparable to other courses offered at the graduate level.

POLS*6050 The Politics of Identity Unspecified [0.50]

This course engages theoretical approaches of identity and identity politics in the global north and/or south. Topics may include contestation over indigenous, racial, ethnic, cultural, sexual, gender, and women's rights.

Offering(s): Annually

Department(s): Department of Political Science

Location(s): Guelph

POLS*6120 Theories of International Relations Unspecified [0.50]

This course examines Western and non-Western theories of international relations, such as realism, liberalism, and constructivism, as well as Marxist, critical, indigenous and gender approaches. It will engage with established and emerging theories, exploring contestation and debates within the discipline.

Offering(s): Occasional years

Department(s): Department of Political Science

Location(s): Guelph

POLS*6130 Rights and Public Policy Unspecified [0.50]

Students will study how individual rights can be restricted, protected or expanded through public policy, and how rights considerations and discourse may shape policy and the policy process.

Offering(s): Annually

Department(s): Department of Political Science

Location(s): Guelph

POLS*6150 Constitutionalism and Judicial Politics Unspecified [0.50]

This course investigates how the constitution and the judiciary affect political processes and decision-making, and how politics shape constitutions and judicial process. Canadian or comparative examples will be examined.

POLS*6160 Multi-Level Governance in Canada Unspecified [0.50]

This course considers the evolving relationship among levels of government in Canada. The growth of cities, the growth of policy responsibilities of provinces, the influence of international organizations, and the development of Indigenous governments in Canada all challenge the conventional study of federal-provincial relations in Canada. From year to year, this course examines one or several of these contemporary dynamics. Offered in conjunction with POLS*4160. Extra work is required for graduate students.

Offering(s): Occasional years

Restriction(s): Credit may be obtained for only one of POLS*4160 or POLS*6160

Department(s): Department of Political Science

Location(s): Guelph

POLS*6170 Courts and Parliament Unspecified [0.50]

The course critically examines the complex relationship between the judiciary and representative institutions. By comparing the treatment of current political controversies (assisted suicide, prostitution, drug treatment), students will better appreciate the often-subtle exchanges between the two institutions and further enhance their research abilities in regards to both legal and legislative processes. Offered in conjunction with POLS*4070. Extra work is required for graduate students.

Offering(s): Annually

Restriction(s): Credit may be obtained for only one of POLS*4070 or POLS*6170

Department(s): Department of Political Science

Location(s): Guelph

POLS*6180 Women, Justice and Public Policy Unspecified [0.50]

This course will use gender-based analysis in examining a series of justice and public policy issues affecting the lives of women, including equality rights, pay and employment equity, domestic violence, sexual assault, family policy, health care policy, and pornography. Offered in conjunction with POLS*4100. Extra work is required for graduate students.
